

New Adjunct General of Iowa National Guard

Last week, Brigadier General Tim Orr officially took over as Adjunct General of the Iowa National Guard. General Orr will be the 28th Adjunct General of the Iowa National Guard.

Gen. Orr has three decades of military service with the Iowa Army National Guard, most recently serving as Deputy Adjutant General. Prior to that assignment, Orr served as the Iowa Army National Guard's Chief of Staff, and commanded the 2nd Brigade Combat Team, 34th Infantry Division, and Iowa Army National Guard from October 2004 to October 2007.

Gen Orr was tapped this past November by Governor

Culver to succeed Lt. General Ron Dardis. Gen. Dardis served as Adjunct General for nearly 10 years. He will continue to serve Iowa as Executive Director of the Rebuild Iowa Office.

The Iowa National Guard currently has around 9,400 members.
