

New Aviation Website Launched

Iowans can find a variety of aviation information from learning how to get a pilot's license to state and federal funding programs on the Department of Transportation's new aviation website, which is www.iowadot.gov/aviation.

Visitors to the website can learn how valuable aviation is to Iowa's economy, and about Iowa's commercial, military, and general aviation. There is a map of all of the airports across Iowa, both public and private, and visitors can get technical information about each airport such as the airport's manager and hours of operation.

The website also provides information for visitors about food and lodging in areas surrounding Iowa airports.
